

The Department of English and Linguistics, one of the most active of the UdL in terms of research in the Humanities and Social Science

2020 research report at UdL

According to the UdL research report (Consell de Govern, on 22th July 2021), the Department of English and Linguistics stands out as one of the best positioned departments in terms of research in the Humanities and Social Sciences. Thus, with data from 2020, the department has 11 full-time lecturers who are recognised for their research with an “active” 6-year research period, as shown in this graph.

