The plays Prime Time and Solitud a Stromboli continue travelling

Prime Time and Solitud a Stromboli, two plays by Núria Casado-Gual, continue travelling in their English and Italian translated versions. Prime Time, which opened at the 2016 SforAGE international conference on research on ageing, has had a new staged reading in the US, with a talkback session organized by Margaret M. Gullette, one of the most prominent voices in ageing studies and the struggle against ageism. Solitud a Stromboli (Catalunya's National Theatre, 2020) has been shown this month at Italy's main universities and cultural centres through the Ramon Llull Institute network. On December 14th a talkback session online gathered all the centres around this play, with contributions by director Imma Colomer, actor Fina Rius, and author Núria Casado-Gual.

*Prime Time,
A Stage Reading*

ACTRESS ANNETTE MILLER

Join local star Annette Miller for a staged reading of the anti-ageist comedy by Núria Casado-Gual, Prime Time, directed by Daniel Gidron with Lee Mikeska Gardner & Lewis Wheeler. The play chronicles the experiences of diva Gloria Aran, star of a long-running TV soap opera, who is told that the producers are killing off her character to make way for a younger demographic.
